

Your manzil rotation, already decided

The book asks you to divide everything you have finished into seven parts and recite one part a day. It also says, honestly, that this is the rotation people invent and then abandon. So here it is, worked out.

Juz 'Amma is pages 582–604 of the muṣḥaf — 37 sūrahs, 2338 words. Split seven ways by length, the heaviest day comes to about 1.3 times the lightest — near enough to even that no day becomes the one you skip. No day ends in the middle of a sūrah.

DAY	WHAT YOU RECITE	PAGES	WORDS	DONE
Monday	Al-Aadiyaat to An-Naas 15 SŪRAHS	599–604	355
Tuesday	Ad-Dhuhaa to Az-Zalzala 7 SŪRAHS	596–599	346
Wednesday	Al-Fajr to Al-Lail 4 SŪRAHS	593–596	346
Thursday	Al-Burooj to Al-Ghaashiya 4 SŪRAHS	590–592	337
Friday	Al-Mutaffifin to Al-Inshiqaaq 2 SŪRAHS	587–589	280
Saturday	Abasa to Al-Infitaar 3 SŪRAHS	585–587	318
Sunday	An-Naba to An-Naazi'at 2 SŪRAHS	582–584	356

Until you have finished the whole juz, rotate only what you have. The table runs backwards, in the order you learn them, so the sūrahs you hold first are already at the top of it. Start with Monday's row alone if that is all you have, and let the rotation grow downwards as you do — do not wait until the juz is finished to begin revising it.

SHEET ONE

Print once and keep it where you recite.
Nothing on it changes.

SHEET TWO

Print once. It is the whole juz on one page and it will take months to fill.

SHEET THREE

Print one every week. It is meant to be used up.

A day of this is about eight minutes. Three to four hundred words, at the pace of a recording you would listen to; nearer five minutes at the pace people actually revise at. It is worth knowing the real size of it, because the reason given for missing a day is never eight minutes.

A missed day is not repaid by doubling the next one. Doubling is how a rotation becomes a debt, and a debt is what people abandon. Pick it back up on the day you return, on the day it actually is.

Two days share a page number wherever a sūrah begins partway down a page. The names are what decide the cut; the pages are printed so you can find the day without opening anything else.

The state of the juz

In the order you will work in — backwards, from the end you already hold. Locked is not the day you memorised it: it is the day it passed the from-the-middle test, cold, having not been revised beforehand. That is the only date worth writing down.

A dot marks a sūrah that repeats one of its own āyāt — the place you are most likely to lose your footing, so give it the extra reading before you need it. The day column is the rotation from sheet one: a day begins at the sūrah it is named against and runs down to the next name.

The week

WEEK BEGINNING _____

DAY	MANZIL — THE ROTATION	SABQI — THE LAST FORTNIGHT	SABAQ — NEW	HEARD BY Monday
Tuesday
Wednesday
Thursday
Friday
Saturday
Sunday

Fill the manzil column before the week starts, from sheet one. A rotation decided on the morning is the one skipped on a bad morning — and the bad mornings are exactly when the older sūrahs need saying.

The last column is not administration. A week with nothing in it is a week nobody heard you, and that is the week the mistakes get rehearsed until they are memorised too.

Order of the day, always: manzil, then sabqi, then sabaq. On a short day the sabaq is what you drop — the new portion will still be there tomorrow; the sūrah you are about to lose will not be.
